1. Drainage and earth moving activities were underway at a site south of Kreis Koenigswusterhausen in late August and early September 1959 in preparation for construction of a new airfield. The exact location was east of main highway No. 179 between Berlin and Maerk Buchholz, approximately two kilometers south of the fork leading to the village of Patz.
2. VEB Tiefbau Brandenburg had the contract for the work at the site. The majority of the employees on the project also had worked on the fuel storage facilities between Kablov and Kablov tileworks in 1958.
